TEXT AND TRANSLATION

Ant. Nunc scio vere,
quia misit Dominus angelum suum:
et eripuit me de manu Herodis,
et de omni expectatione plebis Iudaeorum.
Ps. Domine, probasti me, et cognovisti me:
tu cognovisti sessionem meam,
et resurrectionem meam.
Gloria Patri, et Filio, et Spiritui Sancto.
Sicut erat in principio, et nunc, et semper,
et in saecula saeculorum. Amen.

Now I know for certain that the Lord has sent his angel
and has rescued me from the band of Herod
and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews.
Lord, you have searched me and known me;
you know my sitting down
and my rising up.
Glory be to the Father, and to the Son,
and to the Holy Spirit. As it was in the beginning,
is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen.

Acts 12:11; Psalm 138 (139):1–2.

FOR REHEARSAL

The work. The setting survives only in a textless organ tablature of about 1590. It is built on the Introit chant, which passes between the voices (marked [c.f.]). The words are editorial. The critical edition gives the sources and the reasons for each reading.

Order. Antiphon (choir). Psalm verse (cantor, in chant; the choir may join at the asterisk). Gloria Patri (choir). Antiphon repeated. The organ may take the Gloria Patri or the repeat, as it often did in Waclaw's time, while the choir says the words quietly.

Pitch and tempo. The score is at written pitch, for men's voices with boys or falsettists on the Cantus. A mixed choir should sing a minor third higher, where the ranges match Waclaw's other motets. Minim pulse about 60–72. The organ may double the voices.

The words. Polish Latin, as Waclaw's singers spoke it; the series pronunciation guide gives the sounds. Stress: Dóminus, ángelum, erípuit, Heródis, expectatíone, Iudaeórum, princípíio, saeculórum. Ti before a vowel is tsi, its i a syllable of its own, as the underlay has it: ex-spe-cta-ti-o-ne. Let the light words (et, in, de) move through to the syllable after them.

Signs. Accidentals before notes come from the source and apply to their own note only. Accidentals above the staff are editorial; a bracketed one is optional. Italic words are repetitions of text. The small note in the Altus at bar 56 is editorial; the tied c' before it may be held instead.
